

Proof It...

A few months ago we submitted the North Whagi New Testament to a team of folks at our headquarters in Sanford, Florida who work on the typesetting process. The typesetting process has now been completed and we've received back proofs of what the printed text will look like! The task before us now is to check over each proof to make sure that everything is how we want it before we send it to the printer. This is a very exciting time for us as we are getting ever closer to getting the New Testament into the hands of the North Wahgi people.

Summer Highlights...

This summer we were able to spend 6 weeks in the village as a family. The time was packed and flew by. Here are a few highlights:

We were able to host a ladies' conference where 10 ladies who Robyn leads in a weekly Bible study at our mission support base came to our village to fellowship with the ladies in our church and share God's word with them.

Michael and I took a week-long father-son trip to the Western Province where we got to spend a lot of time together feeding mosquitos and leeches. We met some neat believers out there and were able to have some great conversations while slapping mozzies at night.

Daniel and Matthew enjoyed two over-night trips hiking and sleeping at the bush house of one of our believers (and getting a little hunting in as well).

I was able to take a trip with group of men from our church to another village we've been wanting to check out for over a year now. By God-stance (not circumstance) a young man from this village ended up in our village and one of our Bible teachers taught him through the chronological Bible lessons. He became a believer and has a great burden for the people in his village to hear the Message. During this trip we found out that, even though it is a different dialect, our translated materials can be read there. We have received an invitation to go over there and teach and our church is planning to send a Bible teacher and a couple other men over to do an outreach. Please pray for God to prepare the hearts of the people who will hear this teaching; that many will believe. Pray for all the details to come together.

Our kids got some cool new pets! Matthew got a pet baby kuskus on one of his hiking trips, which is a marsupial. It's similar to an opossum, but much better on the eyes and very snuggly. Michael got a pet baby cassowary on our trip, but unfortunately, one of the hunting dogs in the camp killed it. Everyone in the camp felt so bad for Michael and promised to send him a replacement if they were able to find one. Well, one of the guys did find one and his wife did a 3-4 hour round trip canoe ride to take it to where they could put it on a plane and send it to us. Today, Kevin (2.0) arrived!

Thank You...

We want to thank you for your continued prayers, encouragement and sacrificial support of our family and the North Wahgi ministry.
